The power to manage physical security inspections in the palm of your hand.

Protect your property and your employees.

To effectively manage today's dynamic threat landscape and evolving regulatory environment, organizations must have a strong defensive posture. While physical security measures are a key component of an effective risk management program, many organizations continue to underestimate the importance of securing facilities. Physical security breaches can be just as damaging as other types of security attacks and are far easier to prevent than respond to.

To protect critical infrastructure, assets, and people, organizations should include physical security inspections as part of their overall risk management program, as well as the ability to develop an actionable plan to address identified security needs.

Take control with Tracelnspect.

Relying on third-party expertise or inexperienced internal resources and paper-based processes to perform physical security inspections is not only costly but inefficient and time-consuming.

With Tracelnspect, you have access to a powerful app that empowers you to easily monitor and inspect physical security for all your facilities using a single portal. The user-friendly application guides you through the assessment process, ensuring you not only review all aspects of physical security, but ask the right questions and capture the right information.

Developed by seasoned information security experts, Tracelnspect includes a detailed questionnaire that spans multiple categories as well as the ability to capture images and videos directly within the app. All inspection data is stored, making it easy to access previous assessments, compare results, and continuously improve physical security for all your locations.

Meet physical security regulatory guidelines.

While criminals today certainly rely on high-tech ways of accessing information, assets, and systems, there is no denying traditional methods are still in use. To ensure organizations remain vigilant and continue to address all aspects of security, many regulatory bodies require physical security inspections.

Tracelnspect allows organizations of all types and sizes to complete inspections, generates a detailed report that confirms inspection results and highlights vulnerabilities for mitigation purposes, and provides a way to track physical security improvements over time.
